World Food Wastage Day
29th September 2023

Aladi Aruna College of Liberal Arts and Sciences hosted an awareness program on World Food Wastage Day on 29th September 2023 to raise consciousness and promote understanding about the impact of food wastage on society.

The event commenced with Dr. P. Indirani, Assistant Professor, Department of Tamil, delivering a special address, introducing the concept of food wastage and sensitizing students through audio-visual aids that showcased vivid representations of food wastage and hunger. She conveyed a powerful message about the detrimental effects of wasting food and urged students to be mindful, emphasizing the importance of considering children who don't have enough to eat.

The students staged a captivating and informative skit that vividly portrayed the consequences of food wastage, demonstrating responsible and optimal food consumption behaviors. The performance resonated positively with the fellow students, earning an enthusiastic reception from them.

Dr. V. Muthamilan, Principal, in his vote of thanks expressed gratitude to the faculty members and the students for orchestrating a much-needed awareness program on the critical issue of food wastage. He delved into facts about the growth of seeds and food production, urging students to consume food judiciously and emphasizing the importance of avoiding wastage.
